From these principles follow the tables below, which include the fundamental problems already given. The problems of a straight line through two explicit points, and of a circle through three such points, are omitted, as they are not problems of tangency. a. --Tangent Straight Lines. Prob. 52. To draw a Tangent at a given point, on a circle whose centre is known. The solution here given is a useful application of Prob. 43. Thus 1st. Lay off the radius AC, each way from A, and on the circumference. 2d. Through C, and the points p and q thus found, draw indefinite lines, not shown. 3d. From and q as centres, and radius, AC, of the given circle, draw arcs, and note their intersections with the lines just described. 4th. Join...
